AN ARRESTED MAN

NOW PRESIDENT

One of Those Seized by Austrian Authorities After the Assassination of Archduke Ferdinand in 1914.

Sarajevo, Aug. 29.—One of the men who were arrested by Austrian authorities after the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand in 1914 is now president of the provincial government of Bosnia-Herzegovina and is recognized as one of the leaders in the new kingdom of Yugoslavia. He is Atanasije Shola. He was kept in prison at hard labor during the war. Today, in his office in what was formerly part of an Austrian palace, Mr. Shola described his years in prison and subsequent rise to power. He is a Herzegovinian, 42 years old, and considered to be a man of exceptional ability.

"One hundred and fifty six of us were placed under arrest in July 1914," he said. "There was no proof that I was in sympathy with the Jugo Slav propaganda, but the authorities suspected what was in my heart. Sixteen of the men arrested at that time were condemned to death. The death penalties were not executed, because of the remonstrance of the king of Spain, but the prison sentences were all made effective."

"I went to prison on July 26, 1914. My cell was a small one, a mere cage, and I was kept at hard labor. In October of 1918, the people of Bosnia-Herzegovina, as in other Jugo-Slav provinces of the Austrian empire, anticipated the debacle of the empire and organized a national council for the conduct of affairs. As soon as the Austrian army fled this council came into full executive power, and the men wrongly imprisoned were liberated. I was released from prison on Nov. 1, 1918, and almost immediately was chosen by the national council as president of the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina."

He said that the people generally were in sympathy with the central Jugo-Slav government at Belgrade.

KILLED BY HOOK ON JAW

Prize Fighter Succumbs After Being Removed to Hospital

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 29.—Frank Heifling of Wilkesbarre, Penn., a prize fighter, died in the City Hospital here today as the result of injuries sustained in a prize fight last night. His opponent, K. O. Circus of Pittsburgh was held without bail. Sam Lewis, the referee, was held in $1,000 bail.

Circus landed a right short hook which caught Heifling square on the jaw in the eighth round and felled him. Referee Lewis counted ten and the spectators thought he had merely been knocked out.

Physicians worked on Heifling for an hour but failed to revive him. He was then taken to the hospital. Dr. Weinberg, who was at the club, said that Heifling had collapsed from exhaustion.

LIVED IN DUMP CART

Rent Profitteering Reduces New York Family to Extreme

New York, Aug. 28.—For more than a month Carmine Castellano and his wife and their two children, Frank and Thomas, five and two years old respectively, have been living in a dump cart, with which the head of the family earns his living. It has been learned through Mrs. Castellano's appeal to the mayor's rent profiteering committee of Newark, N. J.

For failure to pay rent the Castellanos were evicted late in July and since that time the mother and her two boys have slept in the cart with an old blanket for protection. The head of the family has been obliged to sleep in the stable.

EX-KAISER AND DOCTOR TACKLE THE WOOD-PILE

Wilhelm Still Takes His Exercise Sawing Logs—Kaiserin Not Well.

Amerongen, August 27.—The life of the two ex-royalties at Amerongen proceeds the same even tenor and there is little to denote an approaching change of residence.

The ex-Kaiser's chronic heart trouble has been worse the last three days, resulting in a German doctor being obliged to don his morning coat three times before proceeding to the castle. Walking this morning at 9 o'clock along the private road which surrounds the castle, however, the correspondent saw the ex-Kaiser and ex-Kaiserin breakfasting in a small summer house in the gloomy grounds, where no sunlight penetrates the thick trees.

They were separated from me by a moat and sat at a small, square table while a servant brought dishes and served coffee, and a hurricane wind almost blew the tablecloth away so that they were obliged to hold on to it. The ex-Kaiser was in black with a small hat. The ex-monarch wore a light tweed suit. They sat there for nearly an hour.

About 10 o'clock I saw the ex-Kaiser cross a small drawbridge over the moat at a fairly brisk gait accompanied by a small dog. He was on his way to his usual sawing operation which takes place in the kitchen garden, but the ex-Kaiserin was not well enough to accompany him today.

By an extraordinary coincidence I was today able to watch him sawing up logs. He had taken off his coat and was sawing in a lavender colored shirt without a collar and wore dark blue trousers. Opposite him holding the other end of the saw was one of the doctors, also coatless, but in breeches and leggings. As the small logs fell to the ground they were piled up by the ex-monarch and doctor into a neat pile at the side. Wilhelm looked well and appeared to enjoy the exercise, but from time to time the couple stopped sawing for a few seconds, as the day was hot and oppressive.
